

KIAJU ATTACK: BOSTON

ROLEPLAYING GAME: Everyday Heroes

RATING: PG-13

GAME EXPERIENCE LEVEL: Beginner

BACKGROUND:

Monarch Field Report

Date: July 30, 2015

Location: Arctic Circle,
H.M.S. Hood

Coordinates: 83° 12' 34.0704" N
12° 49' 30.3564" W

Personnel Present: Dr. Koga Norihiro (Project Lead), Dr. Emery David, Dr. Dawson Wiseman

Monarch Project Liaison: Major General George Hammond

Atmospheric pH level: pH 7

Radiation reading: 100,000  $\mu$ Sv

Project Activity log:

7/27/2015 10:00 am: Monarch Research Division was alerted to unusual seismic activity by British Destroyer, H.M.S. Hood near the northern coast of Greenland.

7/27/2015 12:00 pm: Dr. Norihiro assembled his field team, which was dispatched from Thule Air Force Base at 12:30 pm

7/27/2015 2:30 pm: Field Team touched down on Hood and was briefed by Captain DeSoto on the situation. Monarch Team began to deploy SONAR buoys and take initial readings. Advised DeSoto to label encounter as "thermal pocket" caused by "tectonic shift."

7/28/2015 12:45 am: Field Team dove to incident zone in Monarch HOV Seiryū.

7/28/2015 4:30 am: Field Team completed decent to 950 meter depth.

Field Notes:

Dr. Norihiro observed previously unknown Titan slowly moving away from previously [REDACTED] Titan, observed as some form of enlarged Echinometra Viridis, Costasiella Kuroshimae, or Erinaceus Europaeus. [REDACTED]

The discovered new Titanus Kuroshimae traveled South by Southwest. It seemed to be moving at around 20 - 30 Knots along the ocean floor. Dr. David observed that Titanus Kuroshimae seemed to absorb the algae and various plant life from the ocean's sea bed. Dr. David also observed [REDACTED]

Dr. Wiseman reported that Titanus Kuroshimae did not appear to be on any SONAR, however, we would attempt to confirm this on Surface.

Dr. Norihiro requested we return to the surface and report in. Once on the surface, we confirmed that Titanus Kuroshimae indeed did not appear on all forms of Radar or SONAR. Reported findings to Monarch for additional research and assistance.

GAME DESCRIPTION: The Setting for this game is Warner Brother's Monsterverse in the city of Boston. The date is August 14, 2015. You are an everyday tourist on a Duck Boat enjoying a tour of Boston in the middle of the Boston Main Channel when a Titan unexpectedly emerges to wreak havoc on Beantown. You and your rag-tag group of tourists must attempt to escape the city before it comes under the belly of this terror.

OUT OF GAME INFORMATION:

This game will be using the Everyday Heroes System published by Evil Genius Games. Everyday Heroes is a modern version of the D&D 5th edition rules.

Characters for this game are to be built with the following requirements

- Character Attributes are to be rolled using the 4d6 drop lowest method. Any roll below a 10 is rerolled.
- Characters are level 5.
- Characters while can be unique must be ordinary. (i.e. No retired RAF superspy generals)
- Characters can not be younger than 14.